

SEMINARY DIVISION

BETHANY'S SEMINARY DIVISION

PURPOSE

The purpose of the seminary division is to provide professional graduate and postgraduate ministerial educational programs to help persons whom God has called to Christian service prepare for their respective ministries.

The seminary seeks to accomplish this purpose through a well-designed curriculum of study in the disciplines of Biblical Theology, Educational Theology, and Ministry Theology. These three tracks of study enable students to grow toward full maturity in Christ Jesus, and carry out the Great Commission as stated in Matthew 28:18-20.

COMMITMENT

Bethany Seminary is committed to the inerrancy and infallibility of the word of God and stand for the fundamentals of the faith once delivered to the saints (Jude 3). The seminary is of the "old school of thought" believing that it is more important for the minister to know the Bible than to know books about the Bible. Moreover, all members of Bethany's faculty have submitted in writing their commitment to the essentials embedded in the School's Statement of Faith.

EXPECTATIONS

Bethany is not just an external study school offering courses by extension, but a seminary with a well developed and thought out curriculum. Programs are demanding on students, helping equip them with the knowledge needed to carry out the work of the ministry. There are no short cuts written into the course requirements of Bethany's curriculum. External study students are expected to do as well as those who attend on-site or any other resident college or seminary program.

CHARACTERISTICS

In Old Testament times, especially during the life of Elijah, there was what is known as the school of the prophets. The students were referred to as "the sons of the prophets." These men trained under Elijah and many became prophets in their own rights. Some are found listed among the Minor Prophets. Jesus took twelve men and taught them for three years. It is with this background that Bethany seeks to educate men and women who have been called of God for Christian service, whether it be in the pastorate, in a special field of service, or preaching and teaching the Word of God.

Courses offered by the seminary are in Bible and Bible related subjects. Each module is put into the curriculum to help equip students with the proper knowledge relating to their selected fields of service.

Bethany's main purpose is to educate men and women for the ministry rather than secular occupations. Our Lord taught His twelve disciples to minister to the needs of others in the Name of His Heavenly Father, "as my Father hath sent me, even so send I you" (John 20:21). Paul stated in II Timothy 2:4, "No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life; that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier." Therefore, let it be known that Bethany has been raised up to educate those who have been called of God to serve as pastors, missionaries, evangelists, Christian teachers and Christian counselors.

OBJECTIVES

The objectives of the seminary division of Bethany is to produce graduates:

- Who will be able to communicate the Word of God to others;
- Who can expound the Holy Scriptures in a systematic manner;
- Who will manifest spiritual maturity, and an ability to defend their faith against the onslaught of false teaching and human secularism;
- Who will be able to acquire knowledge through methodological research and use the available resources and technology for such purposes;
- Who are able to demonstrate how to apply the knowledge that has been acquired through both the written and spoken Word;
- Who are as well equipped as those who attend traditional colleges and seminaries.

PROGRAM DESIGN

Most seminaries are three-year institutions. In recent years traditional seminaries have added a fourth year and some a fifth year. After conducting a survey, Bethany learned that many of the courses and textbooks offered in traditional seminaries are virtually the same as those taught in the college division of the school.

Bethany offers seven years of Bible programs, four years in the college division and three years in the seminary division. Students enrolling in the freshman year at the undergraduate level and continuing on through the senior year of the graduate program, would complete more credits in Bible, Theology, and Bible related subjects than most traditional seminaries provide.

It is suggested that the student select one of the three specific tracks offered by Bethany in the graduate division. Each option charts the path that should be taken in moving from the master's level of study to the doctoral level.

WHY A TRACK?

The curriculum design and educational focus developed by Bethany is expressed by three central ideas. These include Biblical Theology designed to study God's Word at an in-depth level; Educational Theology designed for persons in church education or teaching ministry; and Ministry Theology designed for persons wishing to serve as pastors, missionaries, or Christian counselors.

These tracks of study allow the student to focus on one of the three emphases. This does not mean that a student, having selected one of the tracks of study, cannot choose to study a course subject in another track. What it does mean is the student shall choose a concentration from only one track. Courses selected from a second track are to reinforce the student's degree program, rounding out the appropriate knowledge in a chosen field.

LANGUAGE REQUIREMENTS

The main purpose for the seminary student learning a foreign language is to make possible an intelligent reading of the classical writings such as Hebrew and Greek. These works have been translated into English and through modern technology and advanced Bible study tools, students are able to enjoy the benefit of classical Hebrew and Greek without having an in-depth knowledge of these languages. Bethany does provide an introductory course in Hebrews and Greek.

BIBLICAL THEOLOGY TRACK

Option #1

Master of Arts in Religion Doctor of Philosophy in Religion (Concentration – Bible)

PURPOSE

The Master of Arts in Religion and the Doctor of Philosophy in Religion degrees with a concentration in Bible are designed to provide a Biblical foundation for various kinds of Christian service other than pulpit ministry or pastoring. Through these programs graduates are equipped to serve in churches as lay leaders, or vocationally in a variety of church and parachurch ministries.

The nature of seminary studies demands that the curriculum be Bible centered. It is the school's belief that a person is not truly educated without a basic knowledge of the Bible's teachings. Knowledge comes from God and the Bible is the very Word of God, which speaks with Divine Authority.

The Seminary maintains this concentration in order to provide students the Biblical studies required to accomplish their educational goals in the area of Bible.

OBJECTIVES

The objectives of these programs are basic to the Institution's general purpose and philosophy, and are in keeping with the objectives of the seminary division in particular.

Specifically, these programs of study enable students to:

- Demonstrate advance knowledge of the Bible, including a comprehensive understanding of the major books;
- Develop an understanding of the underlying principles of Biblical interpretation;
- Apply correct Biblical principles in decision making and personal Christian growth;
- Make effective use of the Bible in a particular ministry or in general Christian service;
- Develop understanding of the historical application of religion in America and elsewhere;
- Develop a working knowledge of the various manuscripts and translations of the Bible;
- Achieve skills in research methodology and preparation of major research projects.

Master of Arts in Religion (Concentration - Bible)

The Master of Arts in Religion program is designed for those whose goal is to develop a diversified Biblical understanding for general educational purposes. The courses offered allow students to strengthen the scriptural base for life and work, whether in a secular occupation or in the Christian ministry.

PREREQUISITES

Prerequisite for enrollment in this program is an earned Bachelor of Arts degree (Concentration in Bible) or its equivalent from Bethany or an acceptable college.

BIBLICAL THEOLOGY TRACK

Option #2

Master or Doctor of Theological Studies

This option in the Biblical Theology Track enables a student to complete two programs consisting of two steps. The first step is earning the Master of Theological Studies by completing 60 SH credits. The student then enrolls in the second step is the D.T.S. program, requiring 40 SH credits. The Master of Theological Studies degree carries a greater depth of study in the field of Theology and prepares the student for enrolling into the Doctor of Theological Studies program.

PURPOSE

The combined programs in this option are designed to produce competent Bible expositors that are qualified to serve God effectively as Bible teachers, missionaries, or leaders in other areas of vocational Christian ministry.

The nature of seminary studies demand that the curriculum be Bible centered. However, this area of study demands a specialized area of Bible study focusing on an in-depth study of God.

The seminary maintains this concentration in order to provide students the theological studies required for accomplishing their educational goals in the area of theology.

OBJECTIVES

The objectives of these programs are basic to the Institution's general purpose and philosophy, and are in keeping with the objectives of the seminary division in particular.

Specifically, these programs of study enable student to:

- Develop a deeper understanding of God proper, God's Word and a methodology for lifelong Biblical study;
- Develop an understanding of the underlying principles of Biblical interpretation;
- Apply correct Biblical principles in decision making and personal Christian growth;
- Teach Biblical content to others effectively;
- Achieve skills in the area of research methodology and preparation of major research projects.

Master of Theological Studies

Doctor of Missiology

PURPOSE

The M. Min., with a concentration in Missiology, and the D. Miss. degrees are designed to give the student a Biblical foundation for service in the field of Missiology.

The nature of seminary studies demands a Bible centered curriculum. It is the school's position that a person is not truly educated without a basic knowledge of the Bible's teachings. Knowledge comes from God and the Bible is the very Word of God, which speaks with Divine Authority.

The seminary maintains this concentration in order to provide students the Missiology studies required to accomplish their educational goals in the area of Missiology.

OBJECTIVES

The objectives of these programs are basic to the Institution's general purpose and philosophy, and are in keeping with the objectives of the seminary division in particular. Specifically, these programs of study enable students to:

Demonstrate a general knowledge of the Bible, including a comprehensive understanding of the major books;

- Develop an understanding of the underlying principles of Biblical interpretation;
- Develop a working knowledge of the various manuscripts and translations of the Bible;
- Apply correct Biblical principles in decision making and personal Christian growth;
- Make effective use of the Bible in a particular ministry or in general Christian service;
- Develop an ability to think independently and constructively in areas vital to the ministry;
- Further develop knowledge of cultural diversity and world religions;
- Develop an understanding of the fundamental issues of missions.

HISTORY OF BETHANY

Humble Beginnings - Founded in North Georgia in 1973, Bethany was first known as North Georgia Baptist Bible College and Seminary. In early 1982, the name was changed and the school was moved to Dothan, Alabama. Resident students began attending classes in March of that year. Bethany was co-founded by Dr. H. D. Shuemake and Dr. Mary Evelyn Shuemake.

Growth - Beginning in a downtown store-front building with eighteen students, the school has since enrolled more than eighty-five hundred students in its on-campus and external study program. The extension ministry has been established in Georgia, Indiana, Canada, and South Korea. In keeping with the growth of the school, the name was changed to Bethany Divinity College and Seminary in the fall of 2002.

Outreach - Bethany operates a Christian radio station in south Alabama and publishes a newsletter for students. In addition to its proven external study program, Bethany uses the Internet for active communication with students, and for provision of certain material and courses online including virtual classes.

Biblical Foundation - Programs of study are taught from a Biblically conservative point of view. Bethany accepts the inerrancy and infallibility of the Word of God.

Affiliation - Bethany Divinity College and Seminary is a Christian school with a Baptist identification but trans-denominational student body, serving a variety of denominations and independent congregations. Care is taken to help prepare students for Christian service in the ministries and vocations to which God has called them. Bethany has trained students from more than twenty denominations

Location - The main campus of Bethany Divinity College is situated below the foothills of Southern Alabama in the beautiful city of Dothan Alabama. This setting provides a remarkable atmosphere with typical southern hospitality. Being in the most southern part of the state, it is not far from the sandy white beaches of Florida's Gulf Coast. In these wonderful surroundings, Bethany provides a center for learning where men and women can prepare themselves for Christian service.

Building - The Administrative Office of the College and Seminary is situated at 1785 East Main Street, Suite 1, Dothan, Alabama, just off the Ross Clark Circle. Here at the same location, a Learning Center for continuing education is provided for on-site studies. The administration office also houses the college owned radio station WVOB.
